If you're a teacher it pays to learn what you can claim at tax time

To claim a deduction for work-related expenses

- you must have spent the money yourself and weren't reimbursed
- it must be directly related to earning your income
- you must have a record to prove it.*

You can only claim the work-related part of expenses. You can't claim a deduction for any part of the expense that relates to personal use.

* You can use the ATO app myDeductions tool to keep track of your expenses and receipts throughout the year.

Car expenses

- ✓ You can claim a deduction when you:
 - drive between separate jobs on the same day – eg travelling from your job as a teacher to a second job as a musician
 - drive to and from an alternate workplace for the same employer on the same day – eg driving from your school to another school to moderate exam results.
- ✗ You generally can't claim the cost of trips between home and work, even if you live a long way from your usual workplace or have to work outside normal business hours – eg parent-teacher interviews.

In limited circumstances you can claim the cost of trips between home and work, where you were required to carry bulky tools or equipment for work and all of the following conditions were met:

- The tools or equipment were essential for you to perform your employment duties and you didn't carry them merely as a matter of choice.
- The tools or equipment were bulky – meaning that because of their size and weight they were awkward to transport and could only be transported conveniently by the use of a motor vehicle.
- There was no secure storage for the items at the workplace.

If you claim car expenses, you need to keep a logbook to determine the work-related percentage, or be able to demonstrate to the ATO a reasonable calculation if you use the cents per kilometre method to claim.

Clothing expenses

- ✓ You can claim a deduction for the cost of buying, hiring, mending or cleaning certain uniforms that are unique and distinctive to your job, or protective clothing that your employer requires you to wear.
- ✗ You can't claim a deduction for the cost of buying or cleaning plain clothing worn at work, even if your employer tells you to wear it, and even if you only wear it for work – eg sports clothing.

Self-education expenses

- ✓ You can claim a deduction for self-education expenses if your course relates directly to your current job – eg a course in working with children with special needs.
- ✗ You can't claim a deduction if your study is only related in a general way or is designed to help you get a new job, eg you can't claim the cost of study to enable you to move from being a teacher's aid to being a teacher.

Home office expenses

- ✓ You can claim a percentage of the running costs of your home office if you have to work from home, including depreciation of office equipment, work-related phone calls and internet access charges, and electricity for heating, cooling and lighting costs.
If you are required to purchase equipment for your work and it costs more than $300, you can claim a deduction for this cost spread over a number of years (depreciation).
- ✗ You generally can't claim the cost of rates, mortgage interest, rent and insurance.

Other common deductible work-related expenses

- ✓ As long as the expense relates to your employment, you can claim a deduction for the work-related portion of the cost of:
 - phone and internet usage
 - excursions, school trips and camps
 - first aid courses
 - seminars and conferences
 - protective equipment such as sunglasses, sunhats and sunscreen
 - teaching aids
 - technical or professional publications
 - union and professional association fees.
- ✗ You can't claim a deduction for the cost of:
 - gifts you purchased for students
 - meeting students' personal expenses – for example, paying for lunch, excursions or school books.

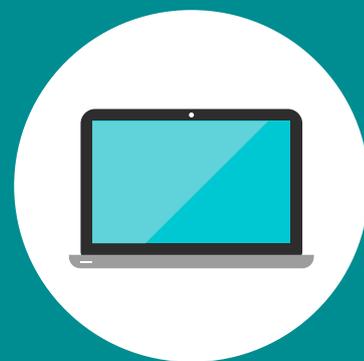

This is a general summary only.

If you're an office worker it pays to learn what you can claim at tax time

To claim a deduction for work-related expenses

- you must have spent the money yourself and weren't reimbursed
- it must be directly related to earning your income
- you must have a record to prove it.*

You can only claim the work-related part of expenses. You can't claim a deduction for any part of the expense that relates to personal use.

Car expenses

- ✓ You can claim a deduction when you:
 - drive between separate jobs on the same day – eg from your office job to a second job as a musician
 - drive to and from an alternate workplace for the same employer on the same day – eg travelling to a different office to attend a meeting for the same employer.

- ✗ You generally can't claim the cost of trips between home and work, even if you live a long way from your usual workplace or have to work outside normal business hours – eg having to work late to speak to a colleague in a different time zone.

In limited circumstances you can claim the cost of trips between home and work, where you were required to carry bulky tools or equipment for work and all of the following conditions were met:

- The tools or equipment were essential for you to perform your employment duties and you didn't carry them merely as a matter of choice.

Self-education expenses

- ✓ You can claim a deduction for self-education expenses if your course relates directly to your current job, eg human resource training for a manager.
- ✗ You can't claim a deduction if your study is only related in a general way or is designed to help get you a new job, eg a health and wellbeing course.

Travel expenses

- ✓ You can claim a deduction for travel expenses if you are required to travel overnight and don't attend your usual work location – eg travelling to a remote office, provided the cost was incurred while carrying out your work duties. This could include meals, accommodation, fares and incidental expenses that you incurred and your employer has not provided or reimbursed you.
- ✗ Receiving a travel allowance from your employer does not automatically entitle you to a deduction. You still need to show that you were away overnight, you spent the money yourself, and the travel was directly related to earning your income.

Home office expenses

- ✓ You can claim a percentage of the running costs of your home office if you have to work from home, including depreciation of office equipment, work-related phone calls and internet access charges, and electricity for heating, cooling and lighting costs. If you keep a diary of your home office usage, you can calculate your claim quickly using the home office expenses calculator.
- ✗ You generally can't claim the cost of rates, mortgage interest, rent and insurance.

Clothing expenses

- ✓ You can claim a deduction for the cost of buying, hiring, mending or cleaning certain uniforms that are unique and distinctive to your job – eg clothing items you're required to wear which have a logo that is unique and distinctive to your employer – or protective clothing that your employer requires you to wear.
- ✗ You can't claim a deduction for the cost of buying or cleaning plain clothing worn at work, even if your employer tells you to wear it, and even if you only wear it for work, eg a business suit.

Other common deductible work-related expenses

- ✓ As long as the expense relates to your employment, you can claim a deduction for the cost of seminars and conferences, technical or professional publications, union and professional association fees.

Gifts and donations

When can I claim?

- ✔ You can claim a deduction for a donation you make to an organisation if the donation meets four conditions:
 - You make it to a deductible gift recipient (DGR)
 - It must truly be a donation. A donation is a voluntary transfer of money or property where you receive no material benefit or advantage*
 - It must be money or property, which includes financial assets such as shares
 - You have a record of the donation such as a receipt.

* If you receive a material benefit – that is if the donor receives something which has a monetary value from the DGR in return for their donation – it is considered a contribution, and extra conditions apply. Visit ato.gov.au/gift-or-contribution for more information.

What is a DGR?

A deductible gift recipient (DGR) is an organisation or fund that can receive tax deductible gifts.

Not all charities are DGRs. For example, in recent times there has been an influx of crowdfunding campaigns. Many of these crowdfunding websites are not run by DGRs.

You can check whether your donation was made to an endorsed DGR on the Australian Business Register website abn.business.gov.au/DgrListing.aspx.

What records do I need?

- ✔ You should keep records of all tax deductible gifts and contributions you make.

When you make a donation, the DGR will usually issue you with a receipt – but they don't have to. If this is the case, in some circumstances, you can still claim a tax deduction by using other records, such as bank statements.

If a DGR issues a receipt for a deductible gift, the receipt must state:

- the name of the fund, authority or institution to which the donation has been made
- the DGR's ABN (if any – some DGRs listed by name might not have an ABN)
- that the receipt is for a gift.

If you give through a workplace giving program your payment summary or a written record from your employer is sufficient evidence.

Bucket donations

- ✔ If you made one or more donations of $2 or more to bucket collections conducted by an approved organisation for natural disaster victims, you can claim a tax deduction of up to $10 for the total of those contributions without a receipt. Further information is available on the ATO website.

When you can and can't claim a deduction

- ✔ You may be able to claim a deduction when:
 - the gift or donation is $2 or more and you have a record of the donation
 - you donate property or shares, however special rules apply (see ato.gov.au/gifts-and-fundraising-rules)
 - there are special circumstances under the Heritage and Cultural gift programs where donations can also be deductible (see ato.gov.au/cultural-gifts for more detail).

Token items used to promote a DGR can be claimed as a deduction, such as label pins, wristbands and stickers.

- ✘ You can't claim gifts or donations as a deduction when it is for:
 - the purchase of raffle or art union tickets, such as an RSL Art Union prize home
 - the purchase of fundraising items that have an advertised price and can be used, such as chocolates, mugs, keyrings, caps or toys
 - the cost of attending fundraising dinners, even if the cost exceeds the value of the dinner
 - payments to school building funds made, for example, as an alternative to an increase in school fees
 - gifts to families and friends regardless of the reason
 - donations made under a salary sacrifice arrangement
 - donations made under a will.

Gifts and donations to political parties and independent candidates and members

In some circumstances, your gifts and donations to registered political parties and independent candidates may be claimed as a deduction.

Your gift or donation must be $2 or more and be money or property that you purchased during the 12 months before making the donation. This includes if you pay a membership subscription to a registered political party. You must also make the gift or donation as an individual, not in the course of carrying on a business, and it can't be a testamentary donation.

The most you can claim in an income year is:

- $1,500 for contributions and gifts to political parties, and
- $1,500 for contributions and gifts to independent candidates and members.

To claim a deduction you must keep a written record of your donation.

To find out who is registered, go to ato.gov.au/political-gifts.

Self-education expenses

It pays to learn what you can claim at tax time

When can you claim?

Self-education expenses are deductible when the course you undertake has a sufficient connection:

- ✔ to your current employment and maintains or improves the specific skills or knowledge you require in your current employment, or
- ✔ results in – or is likely to result in – an increase in your income from your current employment.

When can't you claim?

You cannot claim a deduction for self-education for a course that:

- ✘ relates only in a general way to your current employment or profession, or
- ✘ will enable you to get new employment – such as moving from employment as a nurse to employment as a doctor.

Course expenses

If your self-education is eligible, you may be able to claim a deduction for your expenses directly related to undertaking the course.

General expenses

Some general expenses you may be able to claim include:

- ✔ tuition fees, if paid directly by you
- ✔ computer consumables (eg printer cartridges)
- ✔ textbooks
- ✔ trade, professional or academic journals
- ✔ stationery
- ✔ home office running costs
- ✔ internet usage (excluding connection fees)
- ✔ phone calls
- ✔ postage
- ✔ student services and amenities fees
- ✔ travel costs, including car expenses, between home and the place of education and between your workplace and the place of education
- ✔ fees payable on some Higher Education Loan Program (HELP) loans, but not the loan itself.

You can only claim a deduction for the portion of these expenses that is directly related to your eligible self-education.

Depreciating assets

You may be able to claim a deduction for depreciating assets – assets that lose value over time such as computers and printers – that you have bought and use to study.

Depreciating assets that cost more than $300 are usually claimed over the life of the asset (decline in value). However, if you have a depreciating asset that cost $300 or less – you can get a deduction for the full cost of the asset to the extent that you used it for study in the tax year you bought it. (see Apportioning expenses).

Car expenses

If you are undertaking a course that has a direct connection to your current employment, you can also claim the cost of daily travel from your:

- ✔ home to your place of education and back
- ✔ work to your place of education and back.

However, you cannot claim the cost of the last stage of your travel from:

- ✘ home to your place of education, and then to work
- ✘ work to your place of education, and then to your home.

You cannot claim the following expenses related to your self-education:

- ✘ tuition fees paid by someone else, including your employer, or for which you were reimbursed
- ✘ repayments of loans you obtained under the Higher Education Loan Program (HELP) loans, Student Financial Supplement Scheme (SFSS), the Student Startup Loan (SSL) or the Trade Support Loans Program (TSL)
- ✘ home office occupancy expenses – such as rent, mortgage interest, rates
- ✘ accommodation and meals – except if you travel away from home for a short period for study, such as to attend residential school.

Apportioning expenses

Some expenses need to be apportioned between private purposes and use for self-education. Travel costs and depreciating assets are good examples of expenses that may need to be apportioned.

Use of equipment

If you use equipment such as computers and printers both privately and for study, you must apportion the expense based on the percentage you use the equipment for study.

For example, if a computer is used 50% of the time for study and 50% for private purposes, you can only claim half of the cost of the computer as a deduction. (For more information on asset expenses, see the Depreciating assets section on the previous page).

Recording your expenses

Use our self-education expense calculator (ato.gov.au/selfeducationcalc) to get an estimate of your self-education deductions. It also provides information on your claim eligibility.

Records you need to keep may include receipts or other documents showing expenses such as:

- ✔ course fees
- ✔ textbooks
- ✔ stationery
- ✔ decline in value of, and repairs to, depreciating assets.

You must also keep receipts, documents or diary entries for travel expenses.

The ATO app's myDeductions tool (ato.gov.au/myDeductions) can be used to record your self-education expenses.

Calculating your expenses

In certain circumstances, you may have to reduce your self-education expenses by up to $250 to work out your deduction.

The Self-education expenses calculator (ato.gov.au/selfeducationcalc) on the ATO website works this out for you.

Employees working from home

Advice for employees working from home during COVID-19

We understand that due to COVID-19 your working arrangements may have changed. If you have been working from home, you may have expenses you can claim a deduction for at tax time.

Tracking these expenses can be challenging, so from 1 March to 30 June 2020, we have introduced a temporary shortcut method. It's a simple way to calculate these expenses with minimal record keeping requirements.

To claim a deduction for working from home, all of the following must apply:

- ✔ you must have spent the money
- ✔ the expense must be directly related to earning your income
- ✔ you must have a record to prove it.

This means you cannot claim a deduction for items provided by your employer or if you have been reimbursed for the expense.

If you are not reimbursed by your employer, but receive an allowance from them to cover your expenses when you work from home, you:

- ✔ must include this allowance as income in your tax return.
- ✔ can claim a deduction on the expenses you incur.

In most cases, if you are working from home as an employee, there will be no capital gains tax (CGT) implications for your home.

Expenses you can claim

If you work from home, you will be able to claim a deduction for the additional running expenses you incur.

These include:

- ✔ electricity expenses associated with heating, cooling and lighting the area from which you are working and running items you are using for work
- ✔ cleaning costs for a dedicated work area
- ✔ phone and internet expenses
- ✔ computer consumables (for example, printer paper and ink) and stationery
- ✔ home office equipment, including computers, printers, phones, furniture and furnishings - you can claim either the:
 - full cost of items up to $300
 - decline in value for items over $300.

Expenses you can't claim

If you are working from home, you can't claim:

- ✘ the cost of coffee, tea, milk and other general household items your employer may otherwise have provided for you at work
- ✘ costs related to children and their education, including setting them up for online learning, teaching them at home or buying equipment such as iPads and desks
- ✘ time spent not working, such as time spent home schooling your children or your lunch break.

Employees generally can't claim occupancy expenses such as rent, mortgage interest, water and rates.

Calculating your expenses

There are three ways you can choose to calculate your additional running expenses:

- ✔ shortcut method – claim a rate of 80 cents per work hour for all additional running expenses from 1 March to 30 June 2020
- ✔ fixed rate method – claim all of these:
 - a rate of 52 cents per work hour for heating, cooling, lighting, cleaning and the decline in value of office furniture,
 - the work-related portion of your actual costs of phone and internet expenses, computer consumables, stationery, and
 - the work-related portion of the decline in value of a computer, laptop or similar device
- ✔ actual cost method – claim the actual work-related portion of all your running expenses, which you need to calculate on a reasonable basis.

You can use the method or methods that will give you the best outcome as long as you meet the criteria and record keeping requirements for each method. For information and examples on how to calculate your expenses prior to 1 March or to use the fixed rate or actual cost methods, see ato.gov.au/home

Shortcut method

You can claim a deduction of 80 cents for each hour you work from home from 1 March to 30 June 2020 as long as you:

- ✔ are working from home to fulfil your employment duties and not just carrying out minimal tasks such as occasionally checking emails or taking calls
- ✔ have incurred additional running expenses as a result of working from home.

The shortcut method doesn't require you to have a dedicated work area. The shortcut method covers all deductible running expenses, including:

- ✔ electricity for lighting, cooling or heating and running electronic items used for work (for example your computer) and gas heating expenses
- ✔ the decline in value and repair of capital items such as home office furniture and furnishings including capital items that cost less than $300
- ✔ cleaning expenses
- ✔ your phone costs, including the decline in value of the handset
- ✔ your internet costs
- ✔ computer consumables, such as printer ink and stationery
- ✔ the decline in value of a computer, laptop or similar device.

You do not have to incur all of these expenses, but you must have incurred additional expenses in some of these categories as a result of working from home.

If you use the shortcut method to claim a deduction for your additional running expenses, you can't claim any other expenses for working from home for that period.

You must keep a record of the number of hours you have worked from home as a result of COVID-19. Examples are timesheets, diary notes or rosters.

If you use the shortcut method to claim a deduction in your 2019–20 tax return, include the amount at the 'other work-related expenses' question in your tax return and include 'COVID-hourly rate' as the description.

Remember, you can only use this method from 1 March to 30 June 2020. For information on how to calculate your working from home expenses prior to 1 March, or if you choose to use one of the existing home office expenses methods to calculate your deduction, see ato.gov.au/home

Records you must keep

If you use the shortcut method, you must keep a record of the number of hours you have worked from home. This could be a timesheet, roster, a diary or similar document that sets out the hours you worked.

If you use the other methods, you must also keep a record of the number of hours you worked from home along with records of your expenses. For more information on what those records are see ato.gov.au/home.
